Cup Loss Hits Tennis In Australia

MELBOURNE (AP)—Loss of the Davis Cup to the United States has left the Australian Lawn Tennis Association with a deficit of $44,800, tennis writer Donald Lawrence reported Tuesday. He wrote in the Melbourne Age:

"When Australia holds the cup, tennis here is financially buoyant, but when we are not the champion nation it is a different story.

"If the team reaches the challenge round, the association will be saved, but if not, it will run through its reserves in two years at the present rate of spending."
